

How to Play The Art Game

You can play the game with any number of people. Shuffle the cards and deal them out equally between the players, make sure the cards are face down. Players hold their cards face up in a pile, so they can only see their top card.

Toss a coin or throw dice to see who goes first.

The first player chooses an item from his or her top card (for example, "Influence 67") and reads it out. The other players then read out the value of the same item on their top cards. The player with the highest value wins all the top cards and places them at the bottom of his or her pile. The winning player then has another turn, choosing an item for the next card.

If the top value is shared by more than one card, all the cards being played are placed in the middle and the same player chooses again from the next card in their hand. Whoever wins that round also takes the cards in the middle.

The winner is the person with all the cards at the end.
