Relative Insanity See What I Mean Images, Video Links & Play Information

Relative Insanity See What I Mean: Everyone has at least one crazy family member. If you don't think you do, then that means it's YOU!

In Relative Insanity, everyone looks at a hilarious photo that could have come out of a crazy family photo album, like a young man taking a bathroom selfie while wearing a granny nightie.

Then the Judge rolls the die to tell you what category of caption you're looking at on your cards. Everyone else chooses one of their caption cards to finish the phrase, like: "Millennials continue to amaze" or "It's ugly but it's mine," etc.

In between laughter, the reader picks the funniest one and awards that player as "Mom's Favorite", worth two points! Second best gets one point as "Middle Child" and the Judge can declare someone the Black Sheep, just for fun, if they played a really bad caption!

Play the number of rounds as decided upon at the start of the game, then add up all the points and whoever has the most is the winner.

It's a different hilarious game each time you play!

Features the humor of Jeff Foxworthy.
