

Scrapbooks in the Grosvenor Room

About the collection

According to library legend, scrapbooks began at the former Buffalo Public Library around 1900 (in advance of the Pan American Exposition) as a way to showcase Buffalo's homes, churches, parks, clubs, hospitals, schools, arts, industries, and prominent citizens. Librarians selected articles, sorted them by subject matter, and pasted them on leaves, which were then bound and paginated. The resulting volumes were then indexed in the Local History File. In 1932, when the early scrapbooks were found to be deteriorating due to low quality paper, WPA workers helped salvage the collection by removing and re-pasting articles.

About 600 volumes in 220 titles comprise the collection. Many scrapbooks contain articles published before 1900; most were published between 1910 and the early 1970s. While the bulk of the material is newspaper articles and illustrations, there are also a small number of programs from lectures and dinners, photographs, commercial engravings, and other ephemera.

The most frequently used scrapbook set is the Local History and Local Biographies series, which constitute about 100 of the volumes shelved in the Grosvenor Room. Genealogists and local historians often make use of the thousands of articles and obituaries on Western New Yorkers.

How to use the collection

Please visit the Grosvenor Room if you would like to view the scrapbooks. Some volumes are shelved in the Closed Stacks and can be retrieved by staff. Due to condition of the original, others may only be viewed on microfilm.

Those housed in the Rare Book Room (RBR) are available by appointment only (please call 716-858-8900).

To use the scrapbooks, you may:

- Browse scrapbooks on a particular subject, using the guide below.
- Search the Local History File to locate articles on specific people, places, and events.
