Parable of the Sower by Octavia Butler

In a dystopian, climate-ravaged America, young Lauren Olamina fights for survival while envisioning a new belief system to guide humanity. Gifted with the ability to feel others' pain, she becomes a beacon of hope in a world on the brink of collapse.

Saturday May 17th 1-2 pm

The Overstory by Richard Powers

This sweeping novel interweaves the lives of diverse characters whose connections to trees shape their destinies. Through stories of activism, love, and survival, it explores humanity's relationship with nature and the urgent need to protect the world's forests.

Saturday July 19th 1-2 pm

Secondhand: Travels in the New Global Garage Sale by Adam Minter

Exploring the hidden world of secondhand goods, this book uncovers the global economy and environmental impacts of reuse. Through travels and interviews, it reveals the surprising life cycle of our discarded items and the people who keep them in circulation.

Saturday Nov. 8th 1-2 pm

The Indigenous Peoples' History of the United States by Roxanne Dunbar-Ortiz

Reexamining American history from Indigenous perspectives, this book reveals the impacts of colonization, resistance, and resilience of Native communities. It challenges traditional narratives, showing Indigenous survival as central to the nation's story.
